For Gay Couples: The Big Day

BOSTON | A divided America crosses a historic threshold Monday as state-approved marriages of same-sex couples take place for the first time.

Promised a waiver of the normal three-day waiting period, the seven gay and lesbian couples who successfully sued for marriage rights in Massachusetts will wed before relatives, friends and supporters in Boston and three other towns. The United States will become just the fourth country in the world where same-sex couples can tie the knot.

The couples' jubilation will be shared by gay-rights advocates across the country, including many in states such as New York, California, Washington and New Jersey where comparable lawsuits are moving forward.

For foes of gay marriage, Monday's weddings represent a stinging defeat — but one they hope will be reversed by a backlash among politicians and voters nationwide.

Both sides in the debate expect the issue to figure prominently in the November election, with Massachusetts serving as a rallying cry and alarm bell. DAVID CRARY (AP)

Exploring The Basis For Abuse

Post-9/11 legal memo may have set conditions for Iraq

WASHINGTON | The Iraq prisoner abuse scandal shifted Sunday to the question of whether the Bush administration set up legal groundwork that opened the door for the mistreatment.

Within months of the Sept. 11 attacks, White House counsel Alberto Gonzales reportedly wrote President Bush a memo about the terrorism fight and prisoners' rights under the Geneva Conventions.

"In my judgment, this new paradigm renders obsolete Geneva's strict limitations on questioning of enemy prisoners and renders quaint some of its provisions," Gonzales wrote, according to a report in Newsweek magazine.

Gonzales

Asked about the Gonzales memo, the White House said, "It is the policy of the United States to comply with all of our laws and our treaty obligations."

The roots of the scandal lay in a decision — approved last year by Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld — to expand a classified operation for aggressive interrogations to Iraqi prisoners, a program that had been focused on the hunt for al Qaeda, according to a report in The New Yorker magazine.

The Pentagon said that story was "filled with error and anonymous conjecture." National security adviser Condoleezza Rice, in a German television interview, said of The New Yorker report, "As far as we can tell, there's really nothing to the story." PETE YOST (AP)

ADVERTISING

Sign of the Times

Has sex returned to Times Square? An advertising billboard seems to suggest so. A Swatch watch ad at Broadway and West 45th Street features a larger-than-life close-up of the "Bunnysutra" — two cartoon bunnies in what seem to be intimate positions. The ad is for a new Swatch watch with touch crystal technology. Some passers-by balked at the ad, with visitor Kim Hornyak of Traverse City, Mich., calling it "disgusting." Swatch officials disagreed. "It's a playful and fun launch," said Yann Gamard, president of Swatch Group US. "There is no sexual connotation to it, in my opinion." (AP)

HAPPY ENDINGS Finally Honored

An Ohio woman whose stolen kiss in a long-gone era kept her out of the National Honor Society will be inducted 51 years late. Catherine Peters Wagner, 69, of the Shaw High School class of 1953, said she was reprimanded after being caught giving a quick kiss to a boyfriend as they passed in a school stairwell. Wagner went to Ohio State University on a music scholarship and played the cello with the Columbus Symphony Orchestra for 29 years. She married Robert Wagner, the boyfriend in the stairwell — and they will celebrate their 48th anniversary this year. (AP)

CELL PHONES Loud and Clear

A man who said he was fed up with his cellular phone service went to a Fargo, N.D., mall and started hurling phones across a store, striking an employee and causing more than $2,000 in damage, authorities said. Jason Perala, 22, of Fargo, told The Forum newspaper that he planned only to yell at employees at Verizon Wireless. Police said Perala took off his shirt and put on safety glasses before he began tossing merchandise. Perala was arrested and jailed on charges of felony criminal mischief and misdemeanor simple assault. (AP)

ANIMAL WATCH My, What Big Fangs You Have

There was more to the "funky-looking house cat" rescued by a good Samaritan this week along a Santa Cruz, Calif., highway. The unidentified rescuer picked up the dazed feline last week after it had apparently been struck by a car. It was fortunate the cat was too stunned to move. The nearly 10-pound "funky" kitty turned out to be a bobcat with sharp claws and 3/4-inch fangs. The animal underwent treatment at the Westside Animal Hospital — after doctors gave it anesthetics. (AP)

ON THE BEAT Cruising in Style

Italian drivers who like to use highways as their personal speed-tracks are about to lose the race. Italy's state police presented a sleek new addition Friday: a Lamborghini Gallardo, with a top speed of 192 mph. Police showed it off at an anniversary celebration in Rome on Friday. They said the Lamborghini will be used on the Salerno-Reggio Calabria highway in southern Italy, for emergencies and to transport organs for transplant. The donated six-speed, two-door luxury vehicle promises the ability to go from zero to 60 mph in four seconds, and has a list price of $165,000. (AP)

Anxious couples camp out for marriage licenses

BOSTON | Like fans anxious for concert tickets, same-sex couples waited in line for hours outside Cambridge's City Hall for an event they once thought they'd never get to experience: marriage.

Marcia Hams, 56, and her partner, Susan Shepherd, 52, of Cambridge, showed up at midnight Saturday — a full 24 hours ahead of time — to stake out the first spot in line where the city clerk was to hand out the nation's first state-sanctioned gay marriage applications early Monday.

"People do this for Red Sox tickets, concert tickets," said Hams, a health care advocate who has been with Shepherd, a graduate student, for 27 years. "Certainly we can do it for this."

The couple, one of five stationed outside city hall by mid-afternoon Sunday, sat in lawn chairs, donned rain jackets to protect themselves from a light drizzle and drank plenty of coffee. Sunday morning, a young man approached them and gave them a large red flower, saying, "I wish you a long and happy marriage."

Cambridge, across the Charles River from Boston and home to Harvard University, decided to seize the earliest moment to begin the process of granting same-sex couples the historic right that gay-rights advocates are seeking in dozens of states. Mayor Michael Sullivan planned to help cut a three-tiered wedding cake to mark the occasion, and people around the state also held celebrations. JENNIFER PETER (AP)

Body of Missing Minn. Woman Found

Discovery of remains ends 18-month search for Erika Dalquist

BRAINERD, MINN. | Searchers have found the skeletal remains of a 21-year-old Minnesota woman who disappeared a year and a half ago, authorities said Sunday.

The remains of Erika Dalquist were found Saturday night on property owned by the grandparents of William Gene Myears, a man long suspected in the case, police said.

Dalquist's parents, Colleen and Duane Dalquist, thanked everyone involved in the search for not giving up.

Prosecutors charged Myears with second-degree manslaughter in Dalquist's disappearance in January 2003, but dropped the charge two weeks later due to insufficient evidence.

Myears remains a suspect, but Crow Wing County Sheriff Eric Klang would not comment on whether authorities knew where he was Sunday.

Bob Heales, a private investigator involved in the search, said the clothing on the body was the same as Dalquist was wearing when she was last seen Oct. 30, 2002, as she left a bar in downtown Brainerd, about 100 miles north of Minneapolis. KARRIN MILLS (AP)

Brown v. Board Turns 50

High court ruling on school desegregation still a key precedent

WASHINGTON | Among the thousands of cases decided by the Supreme Court, just a few are instantly recognizable by name. Dred Scott. Roe v. Wade. Bush v. Gore. And, as much as any other, Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka, Kansas.

That Americans of all backgrounds and ages can rattle off the entire title of the 1954 school desegregation case demonstrates how it has grown beyond the legal fight it raised.

Brown stands for the principle that the Constitution guarantees equality for all and that state-sponsored racial segregation is indefensible. That declaration by the court on May 17, 1954 — 50 years ago Monday — provided the legal underpinning for much of what followed in the civil rights era.

A unanimous Supreme Court held that the part of the Constitution guaranteeing “equal protection of the laws” meant equal treatment for blacks and whites. The decision overturned a 19th-century ruling permitting “separate but equal” facilities for the races.

“Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal,” the court said in Brown.

Through the latter 1950s, the high court issued short opinions extending Brown's rationale far beyond the schoolhouse — to buses and other areas where racial separation had been a fact of life in the South.

CLOSED DOORS: In 1964, Linda Brown stands in front of the school in Topeka, Kan., that refused her admission when she was nine years old because she is black.

Later rulings that flowed indirectly from Brown outlawed less overt racial discrimination in housing and voting rights. The ruling also echoes in decisions advancing rights for women and the handicapped.

The high court has struggled with other legacies of Brown in rulings on other anti-discrimination programs. The court has struck down some affirmative action programs as unconstitutional, while allowing other kinds of racial balancing. A 5-4 majority quoted Brown in last year's endorsement of affirmative action in university admissions.

Brown Continues Civil Rights Fight

TOPEKA, KAN. | Linda Brown had no idea she was making history in the fall of 1950 when her father, the Rev. Oliver Brown, took her by the hand and marched her to in an all-white school near her home.

Linda Brown, now Linda Brown Thompson, has mostly shied away from reporters, although she has spoken at events in recent months in anticipation of the 50th anniversary of the ruling.

Linda grew up in a racially mixed neighborhood, said her mother, Leola Montgomery, who remarried after her husband's death. When Linda began attending a segregated school 20 blocks away, the children were confused because the all-white school was only five blocks away.

Now 83, Montgomery said her late husband was reluctant at first when a former high school classmate and local civil rights attorney asked him to become a plaintiff in a desegregation case.

Linda Thompson, now 62, attended Washburn University in Topeka and taught in a Head Start preschool program for low-income youngsters.

During a speaking appearance in March in Laramie, Wyo., Linda Thompson said “de facto segregation” remains a half century after the ruling because of economic segregation.

“The rights of black children,” she said, “are crucial to the survival of the entire country.”

Militia Overruns Italian Base

10 coalition troops in Iraq wounded in battle

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Fighters loyal to radical cleric Muqtada al-Sadr drove Italian forces from a base in the southern city of Nasiriyah on Sunday and attacked coalition headquarters there with grenade and mortar fire as tensions in the Shiite region escalated.

The Italian troops evacuated as their base came under repeated attack. Portuguese police were called out to support the Italians, seeing action for the first time since the force of 128 deployed to Nasiriyah in November, a Portuguese duty officer said.

At least 10 Italians were wounded, one of them critically, spokesman Lt. Col. Giuseppe Perrone said. He said the Italians relocated to the nearby Tallil air base.

Two Iraqi fighters were killed and 20 were wounded in battles in Nasiriyah, residents said.

Fighting in the southern city began Friday. All but two civilian staffers of the coalition were evacuated from their headquarters in Nasiriyah because of the fighting.

The radical cleric launched an uprising last month and faces an arrest warrant in the murder of a rival moderate cleric last year.

Powell Calls Arab Response to Berg Video Insufficient

WASHINGTON | Secretary of State Colin Powell scolded Arab governments Sunday for not expressing more outrage over the videotaped beheading of an American civilian in Iraq.

He also pledged action against U.S. military prison guards and others responsible for prisoner abuses that have drawn worldwide condemnation. "Justice will be done," Powell said in television interviews from Jordan, where he was attending an economic forum.

Powell said he has told Arab leaders, "When you are outraged at what happened at the prison, you should be equally, doubly outraged at what happened to Mr. Berg."

The beheading of 26-year-old Nicholas Berg was broadcast on an Islamic militant Web site last week.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates were the first Arab governments to criticize the murder after an initial silence. (AP)

Iraqi Ex-General Urges Support for U.S.

FALLUJAH, IRAQ | A former Saddam Hussein-era general appointed by the Americans to lead an Iraqi security force in the rebellious Sunni stronghold of Fallujah urged tribal elders and sheiks Sunday to support

U.S. efforts to stabilize Iraq.

"We can make them use their rifles against us or we can make them build our country, it's your choice," Mohammed Abdul-Latif told the gathering. "They were brought here by the acts of one coward who was hunted out of a rathole ... [and] disgraced us all," Latif said. "Let us tell our children that these men came here to protect us."

Many nodded in approval. Later, they clasped Latif's hands and patted him on the back. (AP)

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC High Turnout for Presidential Vote Marred by Violence

Dominicans desperate for relief from a severe economic crisis turned out in massive numbers Sunday to choose their next president in a vote marred by a polling station shooting. The violence broke out in a southwestern town, when a supporter of President Hipolito Mejia and a backer of challenger and former President Leonel Fernandez pulled guns and opened fire during an argument, observers said. The two were killed, as was another Mejia supporter who tried to intervene, said an observer from the Organization of American States. (AP)

Pope Canonizes Italian Doctor Who Refused Abortion

VATICAN CITY | Pope John Paul II named six new saints Sunday, including a woman who became a symbol for abortion opponents because she refused to end her pregnancy despite warnings that it could kill her.

The Vatican has long championed the case of Gianna Beretta Molla, an Italian pediatrician who died in 1962 at the age of 39 — a week after giving birth to her fourth child. Doctors had told her it was dangerous to proceed with the pregnancy because she had a tumor in her uterus.

In proclaiming her a saint, John Paul praised her "extreme sacrifice" and her simple but profound message. "May our era rediscover, by the example of Gianna Beretta Molla, the pure, chaste and fertile beauty of conjugal love, lived as a response to the divine calling," he said.

John Paul also praised the examples of the five other people canonized Sunday, including two Italian priests and a Spanish monk who founded religious orders, a Lebanese Maronite priest and a wealthy Italian widow who opened her homes to abandoned children. (AP)

Ambush in Afghanistan Kills U.S. Soldier

KANDAHAR, AFGHANISTAN | Suspected Taliban fighters ambushed a U.S. combat patrol in southern Afghanistan, killing one soldier, the military said Sunday, while hundreds of Afghan forces were deployed in a neighboring province after seizing a consignment of rebel weapons.

Also, after being alerted by Afghan authorities, U.S. troops defused a bomb targeting a bridge not far from where the patrol was attacked Saturday in Helmand province, the local police chief said.

Meanwhile, Afghan police arrested six suspected Taliban Sunday for arms smuggling in neighboring Kandahar province. District police chief Saadullah Khan said two of the arrested men were brothers of an adviser to Taliban supreme leader Mullah Omar and that 500 Afghan forces had been deployed to help secure the area. ## U.S. Decries Israeli Bulldozing

Powell criticizes razing of Palestinian homes in Rafah refugee camp

JERUSALEM | Israel plans to demolish hundreds more homes in a Palestinian refugee camp in Gaza if violence and weapons smuggling persist there, officials said Sunday.

The warnings came after 13 Israeli soldiers were killed in the Gaza Strip last week. The high death toll has galvanized Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan to withdraw from Gaza, with more than 100,000 Israelis rallying in Tel Aviv over the weekend. Sharon's Likud Party has vetoed the plan, however.

The main area of recent friction has been the Rafah refugee camp on the Gaza-Egypt border, where seven Israeli soldiers were killed last week — five in a blast on a border patrol road and two by sniper fire.

In response, army bulldozers demolished 88 houses in Rafah on Friday, leaving about 1,000 people homeless, according to the U.N. Relief and Works Agency.

At the weekly meeting of the

In the Rafah refugee camp in the Gaza Strip, Palestinian children survey the area where dozens of houses were demolished in a recent Israeli army operation.

Israeli Cabinet, the army chief, Lt. Gen. Moshe Yaalon, told ministers the military has marked hundreds of homes along the border for demolition if violence continues, participants said. The homes would be razed in order to widen the Israeli patrol road.

Since the outbreak of fighting, Israeli troops have torn down hundreds of Rafah homes abutting the road, and widened the buffer zone to about 200 yards in some areas.

House demolitions have been condemned by human rights groups as collective punishment, and on Sunday, the practice drew rare U.S. criticism of Israeli policy.

"We know Israel has a right for self-defense," Secretary of State Colin Powell said at the World Economic Forum in Jordan. "But the kind of actions that they're taking in Rafah with the destruction of Palestinian homes, we oppose."

Single-Dose AIDS Pill in Development

GENEVA | Three major U.S. pharmaceutical companies said Sunday they'll work to develop a new combination AIDS drug offering a single daily dose, making for easier and lower-cost treatments for millions in Africa and the Caribbean.

The announcement came the same day the United States pledged to speed the review process for such drugs. In Geneva at a World Health Organization meeting, Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson said the FDA will propose guidelines to ease the approval process for products that combine several treatments already approved individually by the FDA.

FDA approval for the foreign generics would not allow their sale in the United States because of patent laws, but would allow purchases for distribution in developing countries. The decision marks a significant change in U.S. policy, which had been in favor of more stringent standards for such "fixed-dose combinations."

Meanwhile, Bristol-Myers Squibb, Gilead Sciences and Merck & Co. said they will pursue research to combine three of their HIV medicines into a single tablet. (AP)

Gandhi Endorsed in Bid for Premiership

Italian-born leader of Congress Party a step closer to ruling India

NEW DELHI | Sonia Gandhi on Sunday won the backing of more than a dozen allies of her victorious Congress Party in her quest to become India's first foreign-born prime minister.

After a day of intense horse-trading to hammer out policy differences, leaders of the parties met Gandhi and other Congress representatives on Sunday night to formally propose she head a Congress-led coalition government, said Manmohan Singh, a senior Congress leader.

Gandhi was expected to meet President A.P.J. Abdul Kalam on Monday to officially stake her claim to the leadership. She and members of her Cabinet were likely to be sworn in on Wednesday, United News of India news agency said.

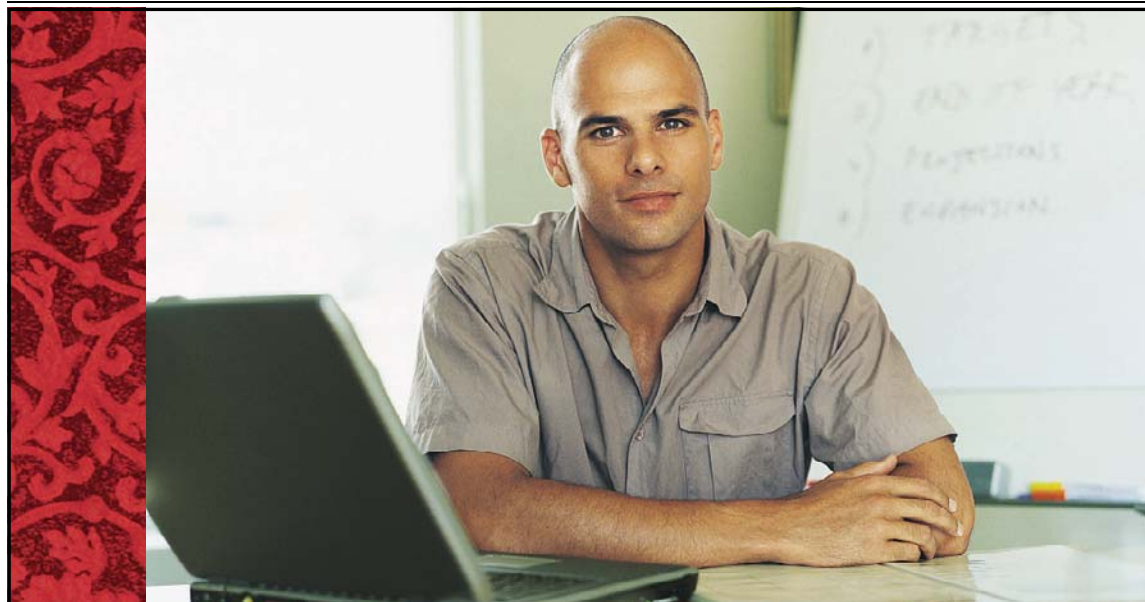

Outgoing Hindu nationalists

stepped up pressure on Gandhi, calling into question her fitness to govern owing to her foreign birth. One senior minister in the outgoing government threatened to quit Parliament if Gandhi became prime minister.

Gandhi, born in Italy, moved to India in 1968 as the bride of Rajiv Gandhi, who later became prime minister and was killed in a suicide bombing in 1991. She became an Indian citizen in 1983. (AP)

UMd. 'Cicadamanians' revel in cicadas' music

UNIVERSITY PARK, MD. | There are three parts to the song a male cicada sings when he's looking for a little love, explains entomologist Michael Raupp, gently squeezing a wriggling insect between his thumb and forefinger.

First there's the "How ya' doin'?" tune, followed by "Do you come here often?" But the last is key to closing the deal, the one every male belts out loud because a cicada's got to be a bit forward when he's got only one chance every 17 years to mate.

"It's the, 'This bar's closing down, do you want to come home and see my etchings?' song," Raupp said.

Now's the time to make their move: Billions of the red-eyed insects are crawling their way above ground for their rare mating opportunity.

Scientists say this year's batch, known as Brood X, is the largest of the cicada groups that appear at various intervals.

For Raupp and other "Cicadamanians" at the University of Maryland, it's also a rare opportunity to get the word out about what they say is a harmless, remarkable natural event.

Raupp heads a team of about a dozen graduate students who have been furiously writing cicada cookbooks, teaching classes at schools as far away as Ohio and working with landscapers to minimize plant damage from the expected hoard.

Ultimately, the goal of the cicadamanians is to calm those fears, even if a few of the slow flying cicadas might mistakenly bounce off a forehead or two.

To help prove they're harmless, Raupp perches live cicadas on his face for the benefit of a visitor.

He's been spending recent nights shepherding a film crew through shoots of emerging nymphs and his days handling calls from reporters as far away as Finland.

Still, he knows it's rare for entomologists to become instant celeb-

Feds Investigate Md. Plane Crash

LINTHICUM, MD. | Federal investigators say it could be a year before they determine what caused a cargo plane to crash into a neighborhood near Baltimore-Washington International Airport, killing one man and narrowly missing a home.

Officials with the National Safety Transportation Board removed debris from the crash Saturday. But Paul Cox, an NTSB investigator, said that because the plane had no flight data recorder, the process will be lengthy and involved.

The plane crashed early Friday morning, shearing the tops from trees before smashing into a pickup truck and boat and coming to rest near the front door of a home in the suburb of Ferndale.

Many Ferndale residents expressed gratitude that the pilot, Thomas Lennon, was able to steer his plane away from homes.

"It's a miracle that he didn't hit anything else," said Carolyn Parrish. (AP)

Metro Offers Plans for Avoiding Tie-Ups

WASHINGTON | Subway riders may now have an easier time reaching destinations during an emergency.

Brochures were placed last week at five of the busiest Metrorail stops detailing how to get to nearby stations via bus — information Metro hopes will enable riders to bypass incidents, such as station closures, that can tie-up a commute.

The handouts are available in information racks and at station manager kiosks at Farragut North, Farragut West, Gallery Place-Chinatown, L'Enfant Plaza and Metro Center, a spokeswoman said.

Metro plans to eventually produce a pamphlet for every station and also to make them available on Metro's Web site, www.wmata.com.

DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

SINCE YOU ASKED

Q How come it seems to take so long for Metro trains to resume normal operations when there's a sick passenger?

A Sick or injured passengers delay the system usually when the situation is serious enough that Metro employees must call for emergency responders rather than try to take the rider off the train themselves, said spokesman Steven Taubenkibel.

Situations have included seizures, falling injuries and the rare death from natural causes, Taubenkibel said.

"Our personnel are not trained medical experts, and the last thing we want to do is move anybody" and possibly cause them harm, he said. Metro personnel will move a rider only if the person is "cognizant of their surroundings, conscious and alert," asks for help off the train and can "walk under their own power," he said.

Metro may need to single-track trains around an affected station, slowing the flow of traffic in both directions. Trains with a sick rider also may need to be taken out of service if bodily fluids are present, he said. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

New Memorial Addition: More Police

WASHINGTON | Security lines, searches and checkpoints will greet the thousands of visitors expected to attend dedication events for the National World War II Memorial later this month, U.S. Park Police said Sunday.

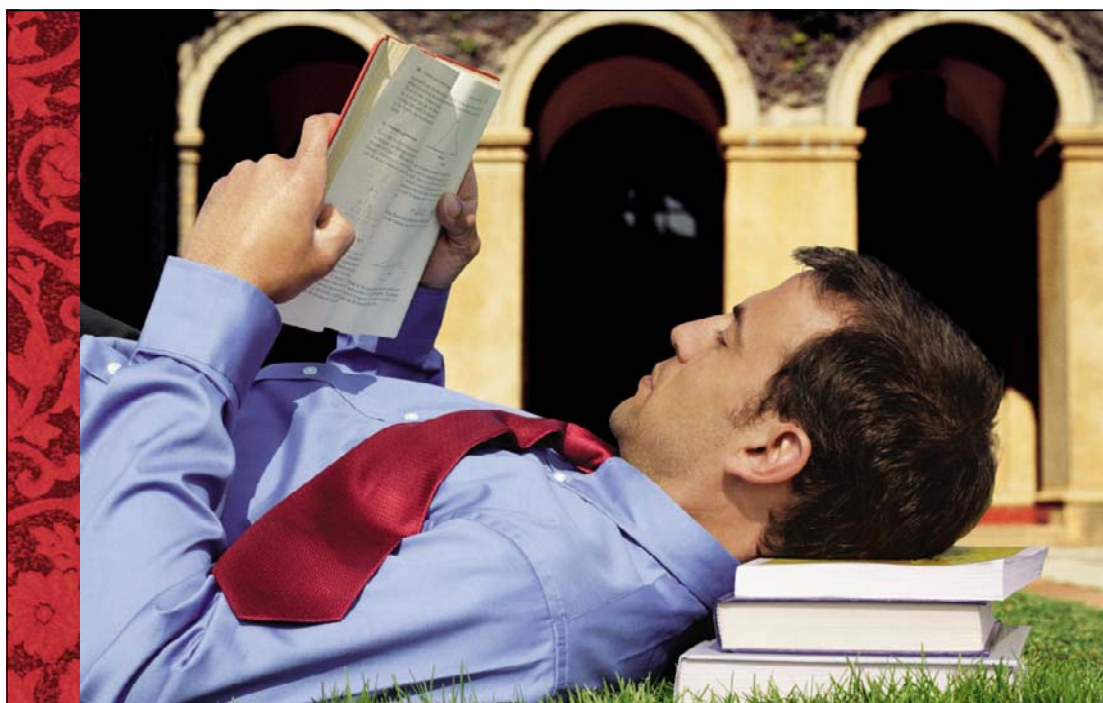

Over 30 federal, state and local law enforcement agencies will help police the dedication events, said Sgt. Scott Fear, Park Police spokesman.

The National Park Service estimates 200,000 people a day will visit the National Mall during Memorial Day weekend for the dedication events and a four-day Smithsonian Institution exhibition. Organizers have given 117,000 people, including many politicians, tickets for the May 29 dedication ceremony.

Although he declined to provide details, Fear said security will be similar to that seen last July 4, when tens of thousands of tourists passed through 19 checkpoints on the Mall. Visitors were subject to bag searches and handheld magnetometer sweeps, and bomb-sniffing dogs patrolled the area.

Fear added there would be different levels of security at different locations on the Mall over the Memorial Day weekend. CANDACE SMITH (AP)

Dream Your Dream Job

TRAVEL | At a case or so a minute, the bottles come rattling off the filling and corking machine at Amity Vineyards.

Jerry Gherardini wipes them off and puts them neck-down in cases that must be labeled and stacked on pallets. The machine yearns for more empties. The full ones keep coming. But Gherardini isn't looking ahead to a vacation — he's taking one.

The Chicago pharmaceutical chemist is on a Vocation Vacation (www.vocationvocations.com), the brainchild of Brian Kurth of Portland. The program is designed for people who want to try out a "dream job" without risking their regular one.

Clients can choose among such outwardly attractive jobs as inn-keeper, brewmaster, winemaker, horse trainer, cheesemaker, raceway manager, hunting and fishing guide, professional gardener, pastry chef or chocolatier, based around the country.

He is talking to more wineries, cattle ranchers, a sportscaster, a major distiller of Scotch whiskey, golf pros and fashion designers and would like to add news photography.

Kurth lost his job in 2001 in the dot-com meltdown and spent six months touring the country.

"I found a lot of people were apologizing for the jobs. They'd say something like, 'Well, I'm an attorney but I'd rather be a ...'

Kurth, 38, launched the business in January. Packages range from $599 for something simple to about $5,000 for the week in Alaska with an outfitter. Programs are flexible, but most run about two days.

He said he aims at smaller companies because their owners tend to be more passionate about what they do.

Winemaking so far is the most popular of the choices in the program. JOSEPH B. FRAZIER (AP)

Smarty's On Track for Triple Crown

Jones's bandwagon grows following Preakness

HORSE RACING | Smarty Jones was unbeaten before the Kentucky Derby, but there were questions about the quality of the competition. After he put away 17 rivals to win the Derby, doubters claimed Smarty was aided by a sloppy track.

With his record-setting romp in the Preakness Stakes over a fast track on a hot and hazy Saturday, there's only one question remaining: Can Smarty Jones win the Triple Crown?

Absolutely.

Sure, it's been 26 years since Affirmed swept the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes, the longest drought between Triple Crown winners. And yes, this will be the sixth Triple try in the past eight years — and 10th since Steve Caughen guided Affirmed to three narrow wins over Alydar in 1978.

But this time, there will be a 12th Triple Crown champion. Smarty Jones is perfect so far, and there's no reason to believe he won't continue on his merry way to racing immortality in the Belmont on June 5.

He's turned aside every challenge with one unbelievable stretch run after another, and he has shown no signs of wear and tear. His breathtaking surge to win the Preakness by a record 11 1/2 lengths has people wondering what's next.

Bobby Frankel, whose Empire Maker spoiled Funny Cide's Triple Crown bid last year in the Belmont, was bowled over by Smarty's Preakness. "He looked like a superstar," the trainer said. "He looks like a cinch in the Belmont unless something goes wrong." RICHARD ROSENBLATT (AP)

WISE BET: Smarty Jones is the overwhelming favorite to win the Triple Crown after his dominant performance in Saturday's Preakness Stakes in Baltimore.

In Brief

BASEBALL

Piazza Ruins Clemens's Dominant Performance

Mike Piazza spoiled Roger Clemens's bid for his eighth straight win with a tying homer in the ninth off Octavio Dotel, and the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros 3-2 Sunday on Jason Phillips's 13th-inning home run. After Clemens struck out 10 in seven shutout innings, the Mets rallied in the ninth against Dotel. Clemens allowed only two hits and singled with the bases loaded in the sixth, the fifth RBI of his career. The Astros ace lowered his ERA to a major league-leading 1.72. (AP)

Clemens

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Mauresmo Comeback Tops Capriati in Italian Open Final

Amelie Mauresmo came back from a set down, saved a match point and beat American Jennifer Capriati in a third-set tiebreaker Sunday to win the Italian Open for her second straight title. The second-seeded Mauresmo won 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 (6) to follow up her German Open victory last week and establish herself as a favorite for the French Open, which starts

Garcia Ekes Out Win at Byron Nelson

GOLF | Sergio Garcia squandered a two-shot lead by closing with a 1-over 71 Sunday at the Byron Nelson Championship, but then survived the sloppy finish by making a par on the first playoff hole to win as Robert Damron and Dudley Hart self-destructed.

Garcia became the first player in 11 years at the Byron Nelson to win despite failing to break par in the final round, and he could not have guessed that a simple, two-putt par on the 18th would be enough to win the playoff.

Hart, who birdied three of the final five holes to shoot 67, hit into the left rough off the tee, missed the green to the right and then muffed a chip. He exited with a double bogey.

Damron, who won the '01 Byron Nelson in a four-hole playoff, lagged his 50-foot putt to within 4 feet in the playoff. He stepped up quickly over the putt, but pulled it to the left. DOUG FERGUSON (AP)

Kings Live for Another Day

Sacramento forces Game 7 with Minnesota

NBA PLAYOFFS | Chris Webber guaranteed a Game 7, and the Sacramento star got all kinds of help in making it happen.

Mike Bibby had 16 points, 10 assists, five rebounds and three steals and the energetic Kings used an inspired effort on both ends of the floor to survive elimination, beating the Minnesota

Timberwolves 104-87 in Game 6 of their second-round series Sunday.

The deciding Game 7 is Wednesday night in Minneapolis.

Peja Stojakovic scored 22 points and swished a 3-pointer at the half-time buzzer that gave Sacramento the momentum. Webber had 14 points, seven rebounds and three assists.

Latrell Sprewell scored 27 points and Kevin Garnett added 19, 10 rebounds and five assists for the Timberwolves.

L.A. Turns Up Defense To Advance

NBA PLAYOFFS | Karl Malone has made his mark as a scorer, averaging 25 points per game in a terrific 19-year professional career.

Now, at age 40, with his future in question, he is making his most significant contributions on defense.

In the final four games of the Laker series with the Spurs — all Los Angeles victories — Malone and center Shaquille O'Neal held Spurs superstar Tim Duncan to 17 1/2 points a game.

As a result, the Lakers' 88-76 win Saturday sent them to the Western Conference finals.

As a team, the Spurs shot 35.6 percent in the final four games of the series, including 30.2 percent in Game 6 Saturday.

The Lakers have reached the halfway point in these playoffs on what they hope to be a journey that ends with their fourth championship in five years.

By beating the Spurs, they might have knocked out the biggest obstacle. Minnesota or Sacramento is next, followed by the Eastern Conference champion in the NBA Finals should the Lakers advance.

"If they continue to play like this, it's tough to see anyone going around them," Duncan said. JOHN NADEL (AP)

DAZED AND CONFUSED: Roy Jones Jr. is keeping mum on his plans for the future after his defeat Saturday night in Las Vegas.

Is Beaten Jones Down for the Count?

BOXING | The end came with shocking suddenness for Roy Jones Jr., courtesy of a crushing left hand that sent him sprawling helplessly under the ring ropes in Antonio Tarver's corner.

The man many considered the best fighter of the past decade wasn't supposed to lose like this. He wasn't supposed to lose at all.

Barely a year ago, Jones had done the improbable and won a piece of the heavyweight title. Now his ring future is in doubt.

Tarver won the light heavyweight title with the punch, though that seemed almost incidental. When you destroy a legend, you earn far more than just a gaudy green belt.

After the fight, Jones gave contradictory answers about his future. He wants nothing more to do with Tarver, he said, but he still might fight again as a heavyweight.

Also, Jones was recently hired by HBO to replace George Foreman as a commentator on its telecasts. He won't make $6 million, the way he did Saturday night, but no one will be hitting him, either. TIM DAHLBERG (AP)

Sharks Even Series With Flames

NHL PLAYOFFS | With Mike Rathje dispensing the punishment this time and Evgeni Nabokov stopping everything he could see, the San Jose Sharks evened the Western Conference finals.

Rathje's first goal of the playoffs started San Jose's four-goal second period and Nabokov made 27 saves in the Sharks' 4-2 victory over the Flames in Game 4 Sunday.

Rathje, still sporting a nasty shiner from his fight with Chris Simon in Game 3, scored on a long slap shot and later added an assist as San Jose jumped all over Calgary in a phenomenal second-period effort.

Everything's Jake

Jake Gyllenhaal, known for indies, vaults into action

PERSONALITY | An orchestra of wheezing milk-steaming machines sporadically drowned out Jake Gyllenhaal's voice. But the 23-year-old actor wasn't sipping a nonfat latte with extra foam, or even at this coffee shop for that matter.

Meeting thwarted, he was telegraphing details, both mental and visual, from his white-walled — “What does that say about me?” — bedroom in Los Angeles, where he resides with Kirsten Dunst. What is he wearing? A pair of Neil Barrett jeans and a plain white T-shirt.

Jake Gyllenhaal has been busy, voguing for photo shoots to promote his new movie, “The Day After Tomorrow,” an elements-driven, effects-packed action flick that opens May 28.

“It felt like a different movie than I've ever done ... just in terms of scope and size,” he said. “It blew me away.”

Among roles Gyllenhaal is better known for are his characters in indie films. There was the 2001 cult hit “Donnie Darko” with his sister Maggie and Jena Malone, and 2002's “The Good Girl” with Jennifer Aniston.

He can also be seen in next year's Ang Lee film, “Brokeback Mountain,” with Heath Ledger. The movie is an adaptation of a love story between two cowboys that was written by E. Annie Proulx and originally published in The New Yorker. It is now part of a collection of short stories.

Gyllenhaal said he is often drawn to projects, such as “Brokeback Mountain,” that explore relationships and family structure.

“We're — I guess you could say we're so ignorant ... when it comes to relationships of any kind,” Gyllenhaal said. “Be it a relationship between a man and a man or a woman and a woman.”

A kitten's plaintive meow interrupted Gyllenhaal. He said he adopted the tiny unnamed ball of fur — white, with gray ears and tail — two days ago from the litter of a friend's cat. “The dog is chasing the kitten around,” he explained.

The dog, a 1-year-old German shepherd named Atticus, apparently hadn't worked out all his puppy energy during his time at the dog park that day.

That gives Gyllenhaal a graceful exit. “I should go feed the cat.”

Cullum's Bull Market

Crooner futures are solid thanks to the U.K.'s Jamie Cullum

MUSIC | Here are two investment tips: Buy stock in Jamie Cullum, and buy his record.

The 24-year-old British singer-pianist has the makings of another Norah Jones. His concerts draw rave reviews, and his major-label debut, “Twentysomething” (Verve/Universal), is a hit in the U.K.

No wonder. Cullum has tons of talent, and while he borrows from a wide range of influences in pop, rock and jazz, the end result is distinctive and irresistible. Harry Connick is the most evident inspiration, but Cullum's music suggests he has also absorbed the best of Frank Sinatra, Stevie Wonder and Miles Davis.

The Norah Jones comparison is obvious, too. Cullum swings harder than the songstress but displays the same impeccable taste, performing tunes by Jimi Hendrix, Jeff Buckley, Radiohead, Cole Porter and Lerner and Loewe. Add to that staggering array five excellent original songs — three by Cullum, two by his brother, Ben.

Cullum's expressive voice sounds a little too unvarnished and contemporary to call him a crooner, but he's a stylish singer nonetheless. The falsetto at the end of “Blame It on My Youth” is goose-bump good, and he makes “I Get a Kick Out of You” fresh and hip.

The arrangements are terrific, too. Hendrix with horns works on “Wind Cries Mary,” while strings support a lovely, leisurely “Singin' in the Rain.” Cullum rarely cuts loose at the piano, but there will be plenty of time for that later, after he becomes an American super-star. STEVEN WINE (AP)

P. Diddy Hits His Limits

Rap impresario drops people too rude for him — his proteges

PULLING OUT | P. Diddy has disbanded Da Band.

On the Thursday night season finale of MTV's "Making the Band 2," Diddy — a.k.a. rapper/entrepreneur/Broadway star Sean Combs — finally had enough of his rap group's constant drama. So he decided to dismantle the crew rather than release a follow-up album to their 800,000-copy-selling debut, "Too Hot for TV."

"Initially my goal with Da Band was to make sure the world saw realistically how serious hip-hop was," Diddy said. "So at times it was kind of embarrassing to me the way they were portraying themselves, not taking it as serious as most artists take this art form. But at the end of the day, it's not worth me getting money for something I think misrepresents what [my record label] Bad Boy and hip-hop is about."

By misrepresenting, Diddy meant all the screaming arguments, scuffles, missed appointments, legal entanglements and hardheadedness that the six-member group displayed during two seasons on the hit MTV reality show.

In the end, Dylan got booted from the penthouse, Fred quit and Sara and Chopper were set loose. The only two members Diddy decided to keep were Ness and Babs, who will record solo albums for Bad Boy.

"It's like, if they don't appreciate it, then somebody else will," Diddy said. "Da Band wasn't as hungry and passionate as most of us artists. I don't think their careers are over."

Diddy has an MTV production deal, which could possibly result in another "Making the Band" with a whole new set of would-be superstars.

"The moral of the story is you have to take advantage of your opportunities and you have to give love to your craft," he said. "If you don't, you can achieve a dream, but it can also be dissolved." RAQIYAH MAYS (AP)

Alexandra's 15 Minutes

John Kerry's girl screens her short film about Vietnam

FILMMAKERS | A daughter of U.S. presidential candidate John Kerry, a young filmmaker, came to the Cannes Film Festival with a short movie about a 9-year-old girl and her father's difficult return home from the Vietnam War.

Alexandra Kerry, 30, who is also an actress and has made four short films, showed "The Last Full Measure" Saturday in a sideline section of the festival for short films. It is not competing for prizes.

The 15-minute film paints a dreamlike portrait of a girl having trouble coping with her father's return from Vietnam.

The movie shows a man ravaged by war — he sleeps a lot, he needs a shave and his hands shake so badly at dinner that he spills wine down the front of his shirt.

The movie is a tender portrait of the father and daughter: He is attentive and affectionate as his doting daughter follows him around. Beyond the father-daughter relationship, it's not autobiographical, said Kerry, whose father is a decorated Vietnam veteran.

"I wasn't born when my father came back from Vietnam," she told reporters. "The characters are fictional, completely."

Kerry said her father hadn't seen the movie yet.

"I'm sort of blackmailing him," she said. "I won't let him see it until he sees it in a cinema." (AP)

Time Travelers Rough It

OLD-SCHOOL REALITY | “Colonial House” (beginning tonight at 8 p.m., PBS) makes unscripted TV something more than a spectacle.

The premise is simple: Two dozen modern-day time travelers arrive by tall ship in the New World of 1628 (at what today is called “Massachusetts”) to spend several months trying to create a functioning and profitable colony, just like those of America’s first settlers.

But there are deeper themes at work here. At the end of the first hour, viewers get a clear expression of how this eight-part series is no contest or game of dress-up. Jeff Wyers, a Southern Baptist minister from Texas who serves as the governor of the “colony,” reflects on tending his 9-year-son, who was sick for several days from the harsh conditions.

“What it brought home to me was, all those people watching their loved ones die — for a dream,” said Wyers. “I told him that we were doing it in the hopes that their story could be told.”

Like its predecessors “Frontier House,” “Manor House” and the Peabody Award-winning “1900 House,” this latest edition of “hands-on history” does a wonderful job of bridging the gap between Then and Now — and helping us appreciate the distance traveled.

WE’VE COME A LONG WAY

Fifty years after the landmark Brown v. Board of Education Supreme Court decision struck down school segregation, the documentary I SIT WHERE I WANT (9 p.m., Noggin) looks at race relations at a Buffalo, N.Y., school for performing arts. While this magnet school is more diverse than any other in the Buffalo system, students still tend to socialize within their own race in the cafeteria, on buses and after hours.

The film follows a social experiment in which students of different races are paired up and spend time in each other’s homes.

BRINGING THE GROOVE FOR ALMOST HALF A CENTURY

Lionel Richie and Cedric the Entertainer host MOTOWN 45 (8 p.m., ABC), a two-hour celebration of the Detroit-based record label founded by Berry Gordy Jr. in 1959. Artists new and old will perform the music of The Supremes, The Four Tops, Gladys Knight and the Pips, Martha and the Vandellas and more.

The animated sketch comedy show ILL- USTRATED (11:30 p.m., VH1) takes 2-D potshots at political figures, movies and even VH1 itself. Some of the cartoon lampoons include a look at “Yogi Bush” drilling for oil in Jellystone park, a Mel Gibson sequel called “Passion of the Christ II: Beyond Thunderdome” and a pointless VH1 nostalgia show called “SoFiveSecondsAgo.” KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

TO THE EDITOR

I AGREE WITH RECENT letter writers who want to see Metro enforce its rules against eating and drinking on the trains. Requiring its own employees to obey the rules would be a good start. I recently saw a Metro employee carry a fast-food meal and drink onto the train and then consume the drink, which took the entire trip to Shady Grove. When I commented, he just laughed and said something to the effect that he hadn't had his lunch yet. And there have been many times when I've seen people eating or drinking in the presence of Metro employees, who just ignored it.

OUTSIDE THE COURTHOUSE Metro stop there are two receptacles: one for trash, the other marked for recycling newspapers. Every morning I see the trash receptacle full of newspapers. When such clear options are presented, I can only reason that people are deciding not to recycle. This decision is unacceptable, given that it takes no effort to recycle. Please remember that our natural resources are limited and we owe it to the next generation to take care of our mess. Please recycle.

Prison Abuses

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Brig. Gen. JANIS L. KARPINSKI, commander of the 800th Military Police Brigade, was online Friday to discuss the prisoner abuse scandal in Iraq.

What's your current status? Have you been subject to any military discipline for your alleged role in the prisoner abuse scandal?

I am still in the Army Reserves. I am still in command of the 800th Military Police Brigade. We are based out of Uniondale, N.Y. I was admonished by my commanding general.

Are you attempting to deflect blame by saying there's a "shared responsibility" for what occurred at Abu Ghraib?

No. I accept responsibility for my soldiers. It is not uncommon for soldiers to be assigned or attached to another command or take orders from another commander. In this case, the soldiers were reacting or following the orders of people they felt were in authority. However that comes out as a result of the investigation will not and does not diminish my responsibility. I am responsible for those soldiers and I take responsibility to the appropriate extent.

How does the presence of civilian contractors and intelligence officers affect the chain of command and accountability?

Civilian contractors are not in the chain of command, and the military intelligence interrogators are in a completely separate chain of command. It can be very confusing to soldiers when they are taking instructions from people who are not in a position to issue orders but have convinced the military police that they have that authority.

Is there any connection between the prisoner abuse scandal and the murder of Nick Berg?

No. I think they're separate events, and that the beheading was timed and staged before any of this came up and Abu Musab al-Zarqawi just seized the opportunity.
